

KATHLEEN WRIGHT

Kathleen Wright is a retired financial advisor with extensive experience in portfolio construction and prudent management practices. She attended Seattle University and graduated from University of Washington with degrees in English Literature and Communications. As a community leader, she is focused on healthcare, education, and the arts. Currently, Kathleen is Vice Chair of Seattle Symphony Foundation and a Trustee on the Board of Seattle Opera. She is Past President of the University of Washington College of Arts and Sciences Board and Past President of Meany Hall Performing Arts

Board, and a former Regent of the Board of Seattle University. Kathleen is a lifelong resident of Seattle; her three children and three grandchildren were all born at Swedish Medical Center. Her husband, Martin Greene, MD, a retired gastroenterologist, was a founding member of Minor and James and practiced at Swedish for 40 years.

